

Kathryn Davis Germeraad, DO is originally from Nashville, TN, where she studied biology and chemistry at Lipscomb University. After graduating with a Masters in Biomolecular Science, she taught as an adjunct professor at Lipscomb University. Moving to East TN, she earned her MBA and Doctorate in Osteopathic Medicine. She finished her residency in Internal Medicine from Ballad Health System and moved to New Orleans to study Addiction Medicine at Tulane University. Currently, Dr Germeraad works for Tulane's Addiction Medicine Program and has been involved with Hancock County Family Dependency Treatment Court. In addition to her duties at Tulane School of Medicine, she has recently partnered with Odyssey House of Louisiana and opened a new detox facility. Dr Germeraad is passionate about mental health, medical education, and advancing addiction treatment in Louisiana.

Kathryn Davis Germeraad DO, MBA, MS
Addiction Medicine - Tulane University Medical School
Internal Medicine Physician